

SAVIGNOLA PAOLINA

Chianti Classico

Matt Kramer of the Wine Spectator chose Savignola Paolina as one of three Chiantis to represent the best, traditional wine-making in Chianti Classico. Over 95% Sangiovese, with the balance in Canaiolo, he described it as terroir-driven, representing “what Italians would call la verità – the truth...If Mozart made Chianti, it’d be Paolina.”

SAVIGNOLA PAOLINA

Chianti Classico

Matt Kramer of the Wine Spectator chose Savignola Paolina as one of three Chiantis to represent the best, traditional wine-making in Chianti Classico. Over 95% Sangiovese, with the balance in Canaiolo, he described it as terroir-driven, representing “what Italians would call la verità – the truth...If Mozart made Chianti, it’d be Paolina.”

SAVIGNOLA PAOLINA

Chianti Classico

Matt Kramer of the Wine Spectator chose Savignola Paolina as one of three Chiantis to represent the best, traditional wine-making in Chianti Classico. Over 95% Sangiovese, with the balance in Canaiolo, he described it as terroir-driven, representing “what Italians would call la verità – the truth...If Mozart made Chianti, it’d be Paolina.”

SAVIGNOLA PAOLINA

Chianti Classico

Matt Kramer of the Wine Spectator chose Savignola Paolina as one of three Chiantis to represent the best, traditional wine-making in Chianti Classico. Over 95% Sangiovese, with the balance in Canaiolo, he described it as terroir-driven, representing “what Italians would call la verità – the truth...If Mozart made Chianti, it’d be Paolina.”