

GRIFALCO

(Aglianico del Vulture)

After twenty years of making wine in Montepulciano (its symbol is the griffin), Fabrizio Piccin and Cecilia Naldoni moved to Basilicata (the home of the falcon) and started over. With a custom-built 'green' winery and choice vineyards, they are making some of the most exciting Aglianico in the south: earthy, brambly fruit matched with a lip-smacking tartness. Great wine – but emphatically not for Merlot lovers.

GRIFALCO

(Aglianico del Vulture)

After twenty years of making wine in Montepulciano (its symbol is the griffin), Fabrizio Piccin and Cecilia Naldoni moved to Basilicata (the home of the falcon) and started over. With a custom-built 'green' winery and choice vineyards, they are making some of the most exciting Aglianico in the south: earthy, brambly fruit matched with a lip-smacking tartness. Great wine – but emphatically not for Merlot lovers.

GRIFALCO

(Aglianico del Vulture)

After twenty years of making wine in Montepulciano (its symbol is the griffin), Fabrizio Piccin and Cecilia Naldoni moved to Basilicata (the home of the falcon) and started over. With a custom-built 'green' winery and choice vineyards, they are making some of the most exciting Aglianico in the south: earthy, brambly fruit matched with a lip-smacking tartness. Great wine – but emphatically not for Merlot lovers.

GRIFALCO

(Aglianico del Vulture)

After twenty years of making wine in Montepulciano (its symbol is the griffin), Fabrizio Piccin and Cecilia Naldoni moved to Basilicata (the home of the falcon) and started over. With a custom-built 'green' winery and choice vineyards, they are making some of the most exciting Aglianico in the south: earthy, brambly fruit matched with a lip-smacking tartness. Great wine – but emphatically not for Merlot lovers.