

MAS DE LA GARRIGUE

(Côtes du Roussillon Villages)

In a general sense, the South of France produces some of the world's most reliable and inexpensive fine wine. The sunny and windy region has always provided a lot of juice, but only recently have such high-caliber bargains been so widely available. This bottling is primarily a blend of the area's workhorses, Grenache and Carignan, with a generous dollop of Syrah added as seasoning. A delicious summer staple at the backyard grill, you might be surprised at its supple elegance, and consider it with more formal dinners this fall...if there's any left!
